

Tony Evans

DIRECTOR BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT

Tony joined Jensen Bowers in 1994 and has enjoyed a senior management/directorship role for most of that time.

Tony and his fellow directors put the company's success down to the achievement of two key business objectives - delivering consistently high quality services to a loyal clientele and offering the best possible career opportunities to our professional team.

Tony's business management and engineering background of more than 30 years has seen his consultancy expertise focus on project management, strategic planning, due diligence, feasibility studies as well as project performance auditing.

Tony has experience with all facets of property development including master planned communities and major infrastructure delivery. He also has specialist knowledge of golf course planning and development having advised on many leading golf/resort projects.
